Any reports of harassment will be treated seriously and promptly with sensitivity and complete confidentiality. Complainants have the right to determine how to have a complaint treated, have support or representation throughout the process, and the option to discontinue a complaint at any stage of the process.

The alleged harasser will be given the right to have a support person of their own during any investigation procedures, to representation and advice throughout the process and to respond fully to any formal allegations made. There will be no presumptions of guilt and no determination made until a full investigation has been completed.

No employee or volunteer will be treated unfairly as a result of complaining of discrimination or harassment. Disciplinary action may be taken against anyone who victimises or retaliates against a person who has complained of discrimination or harassment, or against any employee who has been alleged to be a harasser.

All employees and volunteers reserve the right to seek the assistance of the relevant tribunal or legislative body to assist them in the resolution of any concerns.

Managers or Supervisors who fail to take appropriate corrective action when aware of discrimination or harassment of a person will be subject to disciplinary action.

- medical record; and
- criminal record

Discrimination and harassment can occur at any level of the organisation, can be experienced by both men and women and may involve any person. Lack of intent is no defence in discrimination or harassment cases.

Formerly agreed behaviour may be found to be harassment or discrimination when it continues after a request from the recipient for the behaviour to stop, or at the point it becomes intimidating, offensive or humiliating.

Employees or volunteers who believe they are the subject of discrimination or harassment should take firm, positive and prompt action.

If deemed appropriate the employee or volunteer should make the perceived harasser(s) aware that they find their behaviour offensive, unwelcome, unacceptable, and that it needs to stop immediately.

If the behaviour continues, or if the employee or volunteer feels unable to speak to the person(s) directly, they should contact the Operations Manager, Sales Manager, or a member of the Committee of Management with whom they feel comfortable. Either Manager or Committee Member will provide support; ascertain the nature of the complaint and the wishes of the complainant. The complainant does not have to request a full formal investigation if they will be satisfied by less formal treatment of the issue.

Informal Intervention

The Manager will explain the employee or volunteer's rights and responsibilities under EMBSI policy, procedures and EEO/anti-discrimination legislation.

Informal Intervention may be done through a process of either mediation or conciliation. During Informal Intervention the respondent will be made aware of the allegations being made against them and given the right to respond.

This procedure will be complete when the alleged harasser respects the individual's request to cease unwanted and unwelcome behaviour. If this does not occur, the formal procedure should be followed.

Formal Complaints Procedure

Proceeding with a formal complaint requires the consent of the person complaining, particularly as witnesses or senior Management may become involved. The formal procedure will be co-ordinated by the Operations Manager who will be guided by relevant legislation.

The Manager should clarify the complaint and obtain a step by step account of the incident. In serious cases, more than one interview may be necessary. Either the Operations Manager and/or the complainant should feel free to have present a second member to act as a witness or minute taker.

The Manager will document all such interviews accurately and avoid irrelevant information. This will include parties involved, timing, location, and nature of conduct complained against.

Sealed records are to be kept and filed in a confidential and secure place. These records should be kept for a period of seven years. Under no circumstances will records be placed on the complainant's personnel file.

The Manager will organise an investigation, which in most cases may involve but is not to be limited to:

- a private interview to ascertain the facts and what the complainant expects to happen as a result of making the complaint;
- an interview with the alleged harasser(s) to ascertain their defence;
- interviews with other employees, volunteers or individuals who may be able to assist;
- examination of any relevant documents;
- determination of previous behaviours or issues.

All evidence should be forwarded to the person conducting the investigation. Such evidence may include:

- supporting evidence provided by a medical practitioner, counsellor, family member, friend or co-worker;
- Supervisor's reports and personnel records;
- complaints or information provided by other employers about the behaviour of the alleged harasser;
- records kept by the person claiming to have been harassed;
- information on whether the evidence was presented by the parties in a credible and consistent manner;
- information on the absence of evidence where it should logically exist.

On completion of the investigation the complainant and the Manager will determine a course of action to be taken. In most cases this will involve guidance from relevant legislation.

Possible course of actions may include, but not be limited to, any combination of the following:

- counselling;
- disciplinary action against the harasser (e.g. demotion, transfer, suspension, probation or dismissal);
- official warnings that are noted in the harasser's personnel file;
- disciplinary action against the person who complained if there is strong evidence that the complaint was vexatious or malicious;
- formal apologies and undertaking that the behaviour will cease;
- conciliation/mediation conducted accordance with the Community Justice Centres Act 1983;
- reimbursing any costs associated with the discrimination or harassment;
- re-crediting any leave taken as a result of the harassment;

Outcomes will depend upon factors such as:

- the severity and frequency of the discrimination or harassment;
- the weight of the evidence;
- the wishes of the person who was subjected to discrimination or harassment;
- whether the harasser could have been expected to know that such behaviour was a breach of policy;
- the level of contrition;
- whether there have been any prior incidents or warnings.

The Manager will advise all relevant parties of the outcome.

If the investigation determines that discrimination or harassment has occurred, the Manager must record all details and file securely. A copy may be placed in the respondent's personnel file.

If there is insufficient proof to decide whether or not discrimination or harassment occurred, the Manager may:

- remind those involved of expected standards of conduct;
- conduct further training awareness raising sessions for staff and volunteers;
- monitor the situation carefully.

The Manager will monitor the outcome to ensure that the offensive behaviour has ceased, and that neither party has been victimised. This may involve follow-up interviews. If there has been any substantiated victimisation Disciplinary Procedures will be followed.

Procedures for Dealing with Criminal Conduct

Some forms of severe harassment, e.g. physical attack, obscene phone calls, may constitute criminal conduct. Echuca/Moama Broadcast Service Inc. is committed to treat most harassment complaints at a company level as far as possible, this type of conduct is not suited to internal resolution. Such complaints should be treated by the criminal justice system. Employees or volunteers should be advised of the option of police support or intervention. It is not the obligation or duty of the incorporation to report such matters to the police on behalf of the complainant.
